

Teacher/Student Edited Version - Student #1

If I were a statue, in the morning I would see buses unloading children. In the afternoon, I would hear children talking with their parents about their day. I would feel nervous. Every morning when children came to school, if they were early for school, they would play around the statue. If they were on time, then they would say "hi"! I would be holding books, homework, backpacks and a pencil.